No. 4852.—JANUARY 24, 1879.]

The hold which the Canton steamers have upon the daily course of business in this Colony is evidenced by the commotion which is created whenever a break occurs in the usual routine of the working of the steamers. The accident to the Powen has necessitated the Kinshan making double trips, and the excitement consequent upon the hurried manner in which the cargo has to be discharged and put on board makes the Canton wharf a scene of unusual bustle in the afternoons. A very large number of passengers left this afternoon, and the steamer was not able to leave before about 5 p.m. and even then quite a number of people were left behind.

OPEN BOAT SAILING RACE.

Five boats entered—Victor Emanuel's gig, Coeran, Sailors' Home, Daphne, and The Small Fish. The start was effected at 1.55 p.m. Stations:—

- 1—The Small Fish
- 2—Coeran
- 3—Sailors' Home
- 4—Victor Emanuel's gig
- 5—Daphne

The course was from the Coal Sheds at Kowloon around the stern of the Esso and around the bow of the Spanish barque Vicenta, and terminating at the stern of the Victor Emanuel. The first mark was passed in the following order:—

- Victor Emanuel's gig
- The Small Fish
- Sailors' Home
- Daphne
- Coeran

They passed the 2nd mark:—

- The Small Fish
- Sailors' Home
- Daphne
- Coeran
- Victor Emanuel's gig

The winning mark was passed:—

- 1—The Small Fish, 8h. 25m.
- 2—Sailors' Home, 3h. 55m.
- 3—Daphne, 4h. 05m.
- 4—Coeran, (Not timed.)
- 5—Victor Emanuel's gig (do.)

OUR CORRESPONDENT "A Real Old Resident" will be interested in the following cutting from the London & China Express:—

It is strange that following closely upon the announcement of an indignation meeting against the Government at Hong Kong the leading newspapers should receive telegrams from that colony praising the acts of Mr. Pope Hennessy. The eulogies passed upon this volatile strap seem to have been uttered by the new Chinese Minister in an after-dinner speech at Government House. It is not easy to understand in what respect these effusions are regarded as such importance as to justify their being transmitted here in special telegrams. Baron Houtar evidently did not think they were worth sending, and it would be interesting to know whether the expense of wiring was borne by Mr. Hennessy or the Chinese envoy—the only two persons on earth who could feel any interest in the matter.

The following telegrams are extracted from the Singapore Daily Times:—

London, Jan. 18.—The Times has reason to believe that Yakob Khan has been officially informed of the conditions of peace, the terms of which are such as he can honorably accept.

The Midland Institute at Birmingham, which contains the largest Shakespearean Library, has been totally destroyed by fire.

PASSENGERS BOOKED FOR HONGKONG.

Per Mess. Mar. Amazona, Jan. 26—Mr. F. Stewart.
P. & O. Deccan, from Sampton, Dec. 12—Mr. Lamb, Miss McCrene, Mr. W. MacGregor Smith.
P. & O. Hindostan, from Sampton, Dec. 26—Mr. W. Harrison.
Per Gordon Castle, from London, Dec. 7—Mrs. Sangster, Miss Jackson.

(L. and C. Express, Dec. 13th.)

In the House of Commons on the 12th December, Mr. Ashley asked the Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs whether anything has been yet settled with regard to the third clause of the third section of the Chefoo Convention; and when the papers relating to this subject will be presented to the House.—In reply, Mr. Bourke said that nothing had been settled in regard to the clause. Sir Thomas Wade was on his way to Calcutta with instructions to make representations to the Viceroy of India on that point. When the arrangements had been concluded the papers would be laid on the table.

Capt. Thomas E. Smith (1858) has been appointed Commodore at Hongkong, in succession to Commodore Watson. Capt. Smith will leave England for Hongkong early in March.

The appointments are gazetted of Staff-Surgeons—Henry A. Close, for service at sick quarters at Yokohama; Robert Nelson, to the Iron Duke; and Lieut. E. L. Wilson, to the Proton on the China Station.

His Excellency Kwo will, we understand, be received to-day by the Prince of Wales. To-morrow he will leave for Paris, accompanied by Dr. Macartney, and will await the arrival of the new Chinese Minister for St. Petersburg, and his own successor, the Marquis Tseng.

The following members of the China Commission to the Paris Exhibition have been honoured by appointments to the Legion of Honour:—As Commander, Mr. Robert Hart; as Officers, Messrs J. Hart, Campbell, Colin Jamieson, Geo. B. Glover, Bredon, and Detring.

We understand that the Spanish Council of Ministers at Madrid has again taken into consideration the laying down a submarine cable between Hongkong and Manila.

E. E. Li Fong-pao, the new Charge d'Affaires for China at Berlin, accompanied by his secretary, Mr. John Ki-tung, has been received by the Emperor.

The Queen has conferred the Albert medal of the second class on the ship Harlow, of Aberdeen, for gallant conduct displayed on the occasion of the wreck of that vessel in the China Sea.

The Thistle, gun vessel, Commander R. S. Hunt, arrived at Spithead from China yesterday.

The Army and Navy Gazette says:—It is possible, according to reports that have reached us, that the Vigilant will have to be ordered home for repairs, as some serious defects in her hull have been discovered. It is thought that the length of time and the labour required to repair her will make it advisable to send her to a home yard instead of to Hongkong. In other respects she is fit for lengthened service on the China Station, she having been thoroughly overhauled at Hongkong on re-commissioning in January last.

The creditors of the firm of Wm. Pustan and Co. assembled at a meeting on the 4th inst., but the only result of their deliberation was the election of three gentlemen, Mr. Bahstedt, Mr. Roosen, and Dr. A. Wolfson, as a committee to investigate the affairs of the firm. A well known accountant of Hamburg, Mr. van den Berg, is now engaged upon the books, and until the publication of the accounts no further proceedings can take place. The solicitors of the firm informed the creditors of the receipt of a telegram from the senior partner, Mr. W. Pustan, now at Hongkong, by which he submits to the resolutions of the committee; and another telegram announces the election of a similar committee, with administrative powers over the Hongkong branch, Mr. Linsted being nominated a trustee. Pending the report of the Hamburg committee, the mode of dealing with the estate remains undecided.

SUPREME COURT.

IN CRIMINAL SESSION.

(Before the Chief Justice, Sir John Smale.)
24th January, 1879.

REGINA v. LI AOHIE AND WONG AKEU.
The prisoners, who were found guilty on Saturday last of stealing a bangle from a child, were brought up to-day for sentence. The first (the thief) was sentenced to five years' and the second (the assistant) to three years' penal servitude.

IN SUMMARY JURISDICTION.

(Before Mr. Justice Snowden.)

DUGGLEY v. HUMPHREYS, $538.88.—This was a claim made by an apothecary, lately employed by Messrs A. S. Watson & Co., of the Hongkong Dispensary, for three months' wages and cost of a second class passage to England. A cross-action was also filed by Mr. Humphreys, the proprietor of the Dispensary, for $268.13, on a promissory note made under one of the sections of the agreement entered into between the parties, whereby Mr. Duggley agreed to refund the sum of $80 to the defendant (passage money) in case of the agreement terminating through the misconduct of Mr. Duggley.

Mr. J. D. Humphreys spoke as to the custom of supplying plaintiff with food and drink. The drink, he said, was supplied at the discretion of his employees, and they were allowed all that was proper for their health. The store boy had to produce anything that he was ordered by the assistants. Supposing one of the assistants had given an order for one bottle of brandy the boy would have to obey the order. The boy had no discretionary powers, he was entirely under the orders of the European assistants, who were entirely trusted, and no stock account was kept. Supposing one of the assistants wanted a box of cigars or a bottle of brandy for himself, he would obtain it through the store-boy, or more properly still through another assistant. Defendant had reason to complain of the conduct of the plaintiff, who had received about two bottles of brandy per week, and of the incapacity of the plaintiff owing to his intemperate habits. The brandy had also been obtained from the store without payment.

The Court rose about 1 past 1 o'clock.

Mr. Denny appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. Wotton for the defendant.

The case was adjourned until to-morrow at 1 past 10 o'clock.

Police Intelligence.

(Before James Russell, Esq.)
24th January, 1879.

ROGUES AND VAGABONDS.
A number of men were charged with being rogues and vagabonds, having been caught gambling in the public streets. They were fined variously $1, or imprisoned for 14 days with hard labour.

DRUNKENNESS.
Harry Mills, a seaman residing at the Sailor's Home, was fined 50 cents and ordered to pay 80 cents amends for being drunk and insensible.

Neil McCormack, private No. 408 74th Highlanders, was fined $2 and ordered to pay $1.50 amends for being drunk and disorderly and damaging some crockery the property of one Chow Atai, at Holywood Road.

(Before C. V. Creagh, Esq.)
Ng Kun Fung, a soldier at Kowloon city, was charged on remand with attempting to forcibly take away a woman from Show-ki-wan. The case has already been fully reported. No further evidence was taken to-day, and the defendant was further remanded for one week.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE VEXED QUESTIONS.

To the Editor of the "CHINA MAIL."
January 24, 1879.

SIR,—Is a Hongkong-curio, I propose to to-morrow's mail to send to my distinguished friend Professor Tyndall a list of four of the questions put by Mr. Hennessy to the native youths composing the Chemistry class at the Central School. The fifth question I will take the liberty of framing myself, viz., What is the principal element in the policy adopted by Mr. Hennessy towards the Central School?

Yours &c.

"WHAT IS TRUTH?"

OUR LOCAL BANE.

To the Editor of the "CHINA MAIL."
January 24, 1879.

SIR,—As I am interested to some extent in the stock of our local Bank, might I inquire whether it is the intention of the Directors of that flourishing institution to take cognisance, in their corporate capacity, of certain allegations that have been made here and at Shanghai regarding the manner in which the duties of directors as such may occasionally clash with individual mercantile interests. It will be a question for the shareholders' consideration at the next meeting, where speculation which appears indirectly to affect the Board should or should not be specially commented upon. That the Board as a body is in any way whatever chargeable with indiscretion of this kind, I do not for a moment believe. But people will talk, or print, or believe, and our plain duty seems to me to be to inquire if such things are so; and, if so, what can be done to put a stop to them.

Yours,
A SHAREHOLDER.

WHO KNOWS?

To the Editor of the "CHINA MAIL."
Hongkong, Jan. 20, 1879.

It seems there's a lack, Sir, of sound common sense in places where most should be looked for, and I have to say.

The wisest amongst us are oft heard to say that rascals will soon have it all their own way. The robbers and pirates are blithe as can be. For bobbies they all say they don't care a D. Because, though the latter are wily and brave, and mostly au fait at unearthing a knave, it's so very rarely that rascals, who are tried, receive their deserts from the law they're defied. I've tried—but in vain—to discover a reason why, just at the present unsuitable season, that covey of jail-birds—all rascals, no doubt—have been, so unwisely, from prison let out. Perhaps it arose from our Governor's fear. Let them should not spend such a happy "New Year."

In prison as out of it? Who knows? Again, it might have occurred to his wonderful brain that should (as it is said) that they will be long. The pirates again come to bother Hongkong. Our prison would be most infernally small if it were required to accommodate all Who—out of "four thousand"—might have the ill luck

To forfeit their freedom, in spite of their pluck. However! The most that your readers can dare to hope is that those like this may be rare in future. So now, with my very best grace, I beg to decline using more of your space.

Manila.

(Translated from our Manila Exchange.)

A dividend of 5 per centum for the second half year of 1878 has been declared by the Banco Espanol Filipino, adding to the 4.60 per centum distributed for the first six months of the year, the annual dividend amounted to 9.60 per cent., which is a good interest, considering the depressed state of trade.

The duty collected by the Customs for the month of December last amounted to $118,808 against $121,143 same time in 1877. The total amount collected during the twelve months of 1878 reached only $1,493,093 against $1,541,488 during same period in 1877, which is less in 1878 by $48,395.

An appeal made by Messrs. Findlay, Richardson & Co., for the withdrawal of the fine imposed by the Customs authorities for not furnishing the manifest of cargo of the ship Coldingham within 80 hours of her arrival, has been disallowed.

An earthquake was slightly felt at about 9.30 a.m. of Jan. 3, at Manila and in some provinces.

Two new steamers are expected here from Liverpool about the end of the present January for Messrs. Olano-Laranga & Co., which are intended for the inland navigation of this archipelago. The two vessels will be named after the two gallant generals—Churrucua and Gracina—who distinguished themselves in the glorious battle of Trafalgar.

Since the opening of the Suez Canal, the steam traffic was so largely increased in the Indian archipelago, and so numerous were the vessels that visited the port of Batavia, that the Netherlands Government had thought fit to construct a new port wide enough for the vessels to lie at more ease. The violence of the wind and the continued state of the sea have rendered it difficult and sometimes impossible to the vessels in the roads for loading and discharging cargoes. The new port, which is being constructed, is situated in the cape Tandjong Priok, to the east of Batavia, and is to have communication with that city by means of a canal and a railway. The work of construction was commenced in 1877, and at present there are 3,000 men employed in it under the direction of European engineers. It is expected that the works will be completed in 1885. The new port is to be called Primo Henri.

A letter from Pollock (Mindanao) dated Dec. 17th last, says that there are more activity and life in that district during the last two months than in any other time; the Governor is pushing forward with will the construction of Government establishments, and the Chinese are erecting houses with iron roofs. The immigrants from Panay dedicate their efforts to the planting of coffee, cacao, and plantain. The Chinese, like the birds of prey, are eagerly trying to obtain as much as possible of coffee from the Moros at the Malabon and Lalabuan markets, where the Moros, numbering some two to three thousand, make their rendezvous on Saturdays from different places. The streets of Cottabato and Pollock, while the sun is up, are all covered with coffee, cacao, beche-de-mer, paddy, &c.

WENCHOW.

Jan. 18.
Judging from what I hear, the decision come to in Peking by our authorities, as to the identity of the vessel detained with the missing lorcha Mandarin or the trustworthiness of the evidence brought to rebut this supposition, is by no means conclusive or satisfactory to the native officials; and indeed from what I can gather would simply seem to amount to a declaration of temporary cessation of action, in as far as is comprehended by desistance from further attempts to gain possession of the few retaken plank which are all that now constitute the suspected craft.

It appears, however, that Woo Ah yuen has thought himself justified in filing a petition through the Viceroy in Foochow to the Taotai here, praying that our authorities be moved to compel two "British subjects" (sic) (happily) who appeared in response to official summons as witnesses in the case, to pay to the plaintiff a sum amounting to about $4,000 for detention, loss of cargo, freight, vessel, and personal liberty; adding, I am informed, that all these disasters were consequent on the "false and malicious" information laid by the defendants before the authorities. The groundlessness of these statements was conclusively shown at the enquiry held here, and that at the same time the lorcha under detention was clearly proved to be "the one purchased by the petitioner from Messrs Hedger & Co., of Foochow." Woo Ah yuen, if it will perhaps be recollected, is the same individual who on previous occasions stated that he was merely the master of the lorcha; besides which there are other statements said to be set forth in the petition, that would seem to be inconsistent with those made by the plaintiff when a witness before the Court at Wenchow. The native public here look on the whole matter as a great joke, the chief point of which consists in the belief that this is only a continuance of the victory which has been gained over foreigners all through, as the former have (rightly or wrongly) always most openly asserted, not merely their de fait, but their certain knowledge as to this boat being the very Mandarin herself.

Whether or not any of Woo's present assertions when contrasted with his past positions, petitions, and affirmations, materially strengthened the case of those who contend that this is the stolen lorcha, is a question which will, I have no doubt, prove of high interest to all immediately concerned.

Be this as it may, it is perhaps not uninteresting to point out that one of the defendants named is not a British subject; and that neither had anything whatever to do with giving or collecting the information on which the Chinese officials acted when arresting the implicated vessel. As I have said before, they were merely witnesses, appealed to after the lorcha had been safely hauled up and put under guard.

This does not seem to disconcert Woo Ah yuen, however, nor need it do so, seeing how easily he gets over certain geographical facts and natural laws, which notoriously oppose his opening assertions about the defendants and their connection with "his misfortunes."

The Yung ning has duly returned, and we are of course glad to see her, although I fear she cannot hope for very much cargo at this time. The prospects of her getting a good freight after Chinese New Year are cheering. The natives say she is to make three trips "per month," but they all seem to unite in thinking that for the first two months—namely while the trade is being mounted back to its old centre—perhaps two coxages will be found most convenient.

Thus, however, is a matter which rests entirely with those whose interest it is to specially weigh such considerations.

Approves of the steamer, and in proof of the goodwill entertained towards her by the Wenchowites (natives), I may mention that some evil-disposed person or persons (said to belong to Ningpo) diligently circulated reports reflecting on the seaworthiness of the Yung-ning. This has been strongly resented by the Wenchow people, and pains taken to show the falsity of charges which have palpably arisen from interested motives.

We are at last favoured with a sight of the flag—H.M.S. Sheldrake arrived yesterday; but alas! only for a four days stay. I suppose we shall not be similarly honoured for a very long time.

Naval officers who care for shooting are informed that ducks, geese, curlew and plovers abound in good sport can always be had at little expense. I wonder if the Admiral is a "gunner" (of course I mean fondly), and whether the above statement will often his heart, if not on behalf of the Wenchow exiles, at least in the interest of the members of his service who ought to have some relaxation allowed them after the balls, operas, paper hunts, &c., of the more attractive ports, have become monotonous.—N. (Gazette.)

ANOTHER of those unfortunate fires which every winter are witnessed more or less frequently in the native portion of Yokohama, has destroyed a large number of houses and rendered destitute many who were well-to-do tradesmen, or comfortable householders. This time, also, we regret to record a loss of life. About 3.20 a.m. on Sunday, the 12th January, while a stiff breeze was blowing accompanied by the first fall of snow of the season, the fire broke out in a warehouse of the extensive of fire. Thousands hurriedly betook themselves towards Motomachi, where volumes of smoke and bright sheets of flame were seen shooting upwards to a great height. There was the usual scene of panic-stricken people, hurrying hither and thither with portions of their effects, some of which were deposited to the lee of the fire where their owners had the mortification afterwards of seeing them destroyed; coolies were employed in rapidly clearing out the stock-in-trade of some unfortunate vendor of second hand articles; native firemen were making brave, but ill directed, individual efforts to stay the progress of the flames, or save some article from destruction, and women and children in the back-ground were sitting shivering in the cold bewailing their unhappy lot. The fire engine rushed to the spot, but it was too late. The flames were already too far advanced to be checked, and the fire spread rapidly in all directions. The firemen were unable to get near the burning mass, and the flames were superior to their efforts and burned more fiercely than ever.

Half an hour after the outbreak, the fire was sweeping all before it on both sides of the street, when, fortunately, the wind fell. The contingents from the various navies now concentrated their resources against some houses, which, by means of axes, poles and ropes were demolished and carried away in an amazingly brief period. The breach thus made was the means of checking the fire, for the flames got no further. About the time the fire was at its worst two unfortunate women in trying to get away from the flames, were surrounded and burnt to death. Another poor woman, finding fire on all sides of her, and that escape was hopeless, threw herself into a well and was drowned. The remains of a clerk in a rice store were found in cinders; and it is feared that more lives have been lost as several persons are missing.

The fire originated in a rice store, the occupants of which have been taken to the police station to undergo an examination into the cause of the disaster.

We believe that negotiations which have long been pending between Japan and the United States have resulted in the execution of the draft of a provisional treaty between the two powers, by which, in consideration of Japan being permitted to have the unfettered control of its customs tariff, certain supposed reciprocal advantages are to be guaranteed specially to U. S. ships and citizens doing business in Japan. The provisions of the new treaty have been kept secret up to this, no doubt, at the request of the Japanese, but will soon be divulged. We believe it will be found to contain a clause to the effect that the treaty is not to take effect, unless the other powers having treaties with Japan are also willing to agree to the stipulation of her own tariff. As there is no probability of this, the new treaty may be regarded as a nullity. We may probably learn further and authentic details shortly. The transaction wears the aspect of a friendly compact, but which at the same time has no genuine practical value. However, it will please the Japanese mind for the time being; but it is manifest that an agreement which is subordinate to the decision of the other principal powers, cannot be regarded as of much importance, when it is known beforehand that there is no likelihood of England, France, or Germany, following suit.

NAGASAKI.

(Kissing Sun.)

It appears somewhat remarkable that, almost without exception, every sailing ship laden with kerosene for ports in Japan meets with some mishap on her way here. In our Kobe news will be found an account of three more we hear that the Captain has been murdered. There certainly seems a kind of fatality in the transport of this really useful article, and at first we were inclined to believe that the cargo being at all times a dangerous one, no first-class vessel would care to take it, but so far from this being the case we are told that these very ships bringing out kerosene often return laden with tea, and are as a rule first class vessels and ably manned.

It may not be generally known that fresh butter is to be obtained in Nagasaki, and although the specimen of the native production which we have seen does not equal in quality, and more especially in appearance, that of Kioto and Yokohama, still it is a great treat, and well worth the slight difference in price between it and the tinned butter we are accustomed to.

FOUL AIR IN SHIPS' HOLDS.

(Mitchell's Maritime Register, October 25.)

The death of four men from foul air in the hold of a ship is an occurrence of so rare a character that it appears to us advisable to make special reference to the man in which, it is said, the gas was produced. The Elgin (4) was fitted with a water-tank for ballasting purposes which does not appear to have been used. In that tank a quantity of cargo, consisting of pepper and mangrove bark, was stowed. The pepper shipped at Singapore and Saigon is usually in a dry condition, and when stowed in the hold of a vessel it very often swells to such an extent as to burst the bags and damage other goods. The heat dries up wood that is not properly seasoned or has the least sap in it, and gives the ceiling, beams, or planking the appearance of having the dry rot. If pepper is placed near chests of tea or bags of coffee, it will destroy their marketable value by imparting to them its own pungency. Great care is needed when pepper is stowed under hatches in a damp condition. A good Stevedore usually manages to keep this article as near midships as possible, and clear of other goods. It appears that the bags of pepper, as also the bark, which the Elgin had on board, were received in a wet state. Red mangrove bark is used in dyeing, and is taken from the tree Rhizophora gynaecia, which grows in a swampy ground, and is generally found to be thoroughly dried before it is tied up in bundles and sent to ports for shipment. This precaution of drying the bark is not always adhered to, and unfortunately, in the case of the Elgin, it was sent for conveyance without the moisture having been extracted by exposing the article long enough to the action of the sun and wind. The heated steam from the pepper would, it is probable, attack the moist bark, and decomposition of the latter would be the result. The substantial knees of a large ship have been wasted away by the steam from pepper. If, therefore, thick butts of spongy timber can be materially damaged by the heat of pepper, we may assume that of substance required for the hot air or vapour to enter. We cannot find any recorded instance, however, of pepper and bark, in contact, generating such a deadly or fatal gas as is fatal to human life. The foul air as to be fatal to human life, the heated vapour of the pepper alone might render persons instantly insensible on being enveloped in it, but the decomposed bark of the peroxide of iron, in mixing with the noxious fumes which, in mixing with the other, would be too impure for respiration. The tank above could find its way to the air. Some of the foul air was collected for chemical analysis, and we may yet be favoured with a copy of the report of the analysis. At present that which killed the men is called by the name of "foul air." All foul air must be of a gaseous nature, but there are several kinds of gases. Had an open light been taken into the tank a discovery would quickly have been made as to whether the foul air there was explosive or not. We have direct evidence, however, of its being as poisonous to the lungs as the foul air in sewers. One man fell when in the tank and died, and another of the crew went down to bend a line to the body dropped insensible. A third man went down to the assistance of the others, and he fell dead. The boatswain was the next to descend, and he expired on reaching the place where the cargo was stowed; and on the Cook going into the tank he became insensible. There were then four men dead and two insensible. One thoughtful fellow covered his face, mouth, and nose with a handkerchief, and by inhaling the foul air he managed to get to the tank and attach lines to the two men who were unconscious, and by this means they were rescued. This was proof positive that from whatever cause it originated there was sufficient contaminated air to suffocate those who approached it. The 260th Section of the Merchant Shipping Act, of 1851, empowers any officer in command of any of Her Majesty's ships on foreign stations, or, in the absence of any such Officer, the Consul, to summon a Naval Officer, whenever a complaint appears to such Officer to require immediate investigation, and is made by the Master of any British ship, or by any certificated Mate, or by one or more of the Seamen belonging to such ship; or whenever the interest of the Owner of any British ship, or of the cargo of any such ship, appears to such Officer to require it. In pursuance of that power the Consul at Saigon opened a Naval Court of Inquiry at that Port, and, after hearing the evidence of witnesses, came to the conclusion—that the fatality "was caused by the generation of foul air from or by the cargo." This leaves the question open as to whether, in the opinion of the Court, the foul air was generated by the cargo itself, or the pepper and bark absorbed the noxious vapours from other directions. As to the damp state in which the cargo was put on board the ship, the Court say that neither the Captain nor his Officers had any control by the Charter-party over its reception. According to this definition of a contract of affreightment, the Master of a vessel must make his ship unsavoury, or perilous to the lives of the crew, by the stowage of goods below deck, in his judgment, it may be unsafe to convey. The members of the Court, however, were alive to the importance of ventilation, for they recommended that the hold in which the mishap took place should have two tubes inserted in it from the upper deck. They also considered that the foul air was so dangerously prevalent in the mainhold as to demand an increase in the ventilation.

The sewer pipes running under our streets are provided with mantraps and gratings, notwithstanding which men who enter them are not only liable to, but are actually killed by, the impure air they encounter. The best conveyor or disperser of foul air is said to be a rapid current of water. If this theory is unimpeachable, then the constant flow of a dirty stream through the large brick tunnels that are constructed to carry off the sewage, ought to disperse all noxious gases, and force them up through the apertures made with the object of affording ingress to pure and oxygen to impure air. Foul air does not, however, ascend unless it is acted upon by a flow of water or air, the one or both creating a draught. Stagnated foul air will remain choked up. The mere putting of tubes through hatches will not necessarily compel, as it were, the gases to come up through them. Ventilators may furnish air from above, but are not dependable for drawing up dangerous gases from below. Motion is required to make foul air circulate; and where this cannot be readily attained, as in the enclosed hold of a ship, there is only one other way of getting rid of a gaseous nuisance, and that is by constantly using a force or exhaust pump.

WHO WAS IT?

When the streets are as muddy as yesterday the cars are full of ladies coming and going, and the trike pulled by a man yesterday on the fourteen ladies in a Woodward avenue car should be frowned upon by every true citizen. If again attempted he may get himself into trouble. He boarded the car with a rubber shoe in his pocket big enough to fit over a No. eight cowhide boot, and at a proper moment when all eyes were turned upon the car switching past, he dropped the rubber on the floor and then suddenly pretended to see it. Bending over and picking it up he called out:—

"Which of you ladies lost this rubber?" Every face turned pale at the size of it, and each lady gave the other a shy glance.

"Some one in this car lost this rubber!" continued the human hyena as he waved it around.

Not a lady moved. Each one wondered if one of her rubbers had dropped off, but her mind was made up to wade in mud two feet deep before claiming that one.

"The owner can have it—I charge nothing for my services," calmly observed the fiend, as he looked down one side of the car and up the other.

Not a hand was raised, but all feet were drawn under the seat, as if by machinery.

"Very well," said the man, as he rose up to leave the car. "I'm a rubber shop ahead. It won't do the looser any good to call at my office, or to send a boy and basket after this shoe, for I won't give it up."

A VALUABLE SOPORIFIC.

A Paris physician is said to have made a discovery for which railway travellers will certainly combine to vote him a testimonial. Most persons have experienced the misery of a long journey on a line where Pullman cars are unknown. Whether a man is travelling by day or by night, he will probably wish to go to sleep at a time, and the best way of forgetting the ennui of the situation. Unhappily, the wish does not always bring about its fulfilment, and it may even be imprudent to yield to drowsy influences when you are not more than a moderate distance from your destination or from a junction where you have to change carriages. The inventor in question has, however, devised a soporific which he declares to be perfectly innocuous, and which has the singular virtue of being limitable in the duration of its effects at the pleasure of the person using it. The time during which a given dose will operate can be calculated within ten minutes with two figures. Thus a traveller with two hours and a half's journey before him might feel perfectly safe in taking a ten minute dose, or even a two hours and twenty minutes though this last might be a little dangerous. The inventor, who is travelling in his mind, has had railway travellers—for example, besides in Tibbournes cases—to be charged with the soporific to sit under one of those proscribers who seem incapable of fatigue.

A PECULIAR and rather ludicrous case was tried at the Borough Quarter Session at Brighton
